Waveland PD chief disagrees with judge

By WAYNE DUCOMB JR.

Chief Donald Dorn of the Waveland Police Department said Saturday that two men who Friday received suspended sentences and probation for participation in an armed robbery should receive jail terms.

Kosta Vlahos, Place Two Circuit Court judge, in Gulfport Friday determined Leo Cook, 19, of Pass Christian and Randall G. Goodick III of Metairie, La. should each receive a 10-year suspended sentence and four-years probation for their alleged participation in a May 1981 armed robbery of the Amoco Gas Station in Waveland, based on a report in a Gulfport newspaper.

Nelson Croasdale, 18, of Bay St. Louis who also allegedly participated in the holdup, was sentenced in January by Place Two Circuit Court Judge J. Ruble Griffin to five years in the state penitentiary.

Dorn stated, "I think those two should have gotten the same sentence as the other guy. They many have not been in trouble before, but this was an armed robbery they were involved in..."

Cook and Goodick apparently pleaded guilty to the armed robbery charge in July 1982.

At that time the duo agreed to a recommendation that they each receive a five-year penitentiary sentence with the condition that the charges be reduced to robbery, the news report states.

But Vlahos told the defendants his study of pre-sentence reports found the two were suitable for probation, according to the article.

Eugene Henry, an assistant district attorney, reportedly said the same sentences were recommended for the two as was issued to Croasdale.

Croasdale was employed at the gasoline station and allegedly masterminded the armed robbery in which Cook followed instructions to point a gun at Croasdale and order him to turn over the money.

The men were later arrested by Waveland police in which all but $110 of the $2,100 stolen was recovered.

The assistant DA reportedly would not comment regarding Vlahos' ruling.

Bay inspector facing Oct. trial

A Bay St. Louis project inspector is facing a tentative Oct. 30 trial on a Hancock County Grand Jury indictment of accessory before the fact.

Doni Murray, the inspector, waived a Friday arraignment on a charge of authorizing a carpenter in a 1978 city street project to work on Mayor Larry Bennett's home.

Aaron Adams, Murray's attorney, Friday requested Place One Circuit Court Judge James Thomas to set Murray's trial in January because of a heavy case load.

But Thomas set the tentative trial date, if the fall court term is extended from two to three weeks, in October after John (Sonny) Johnson, an assistant district attorney, objected to a January trial.

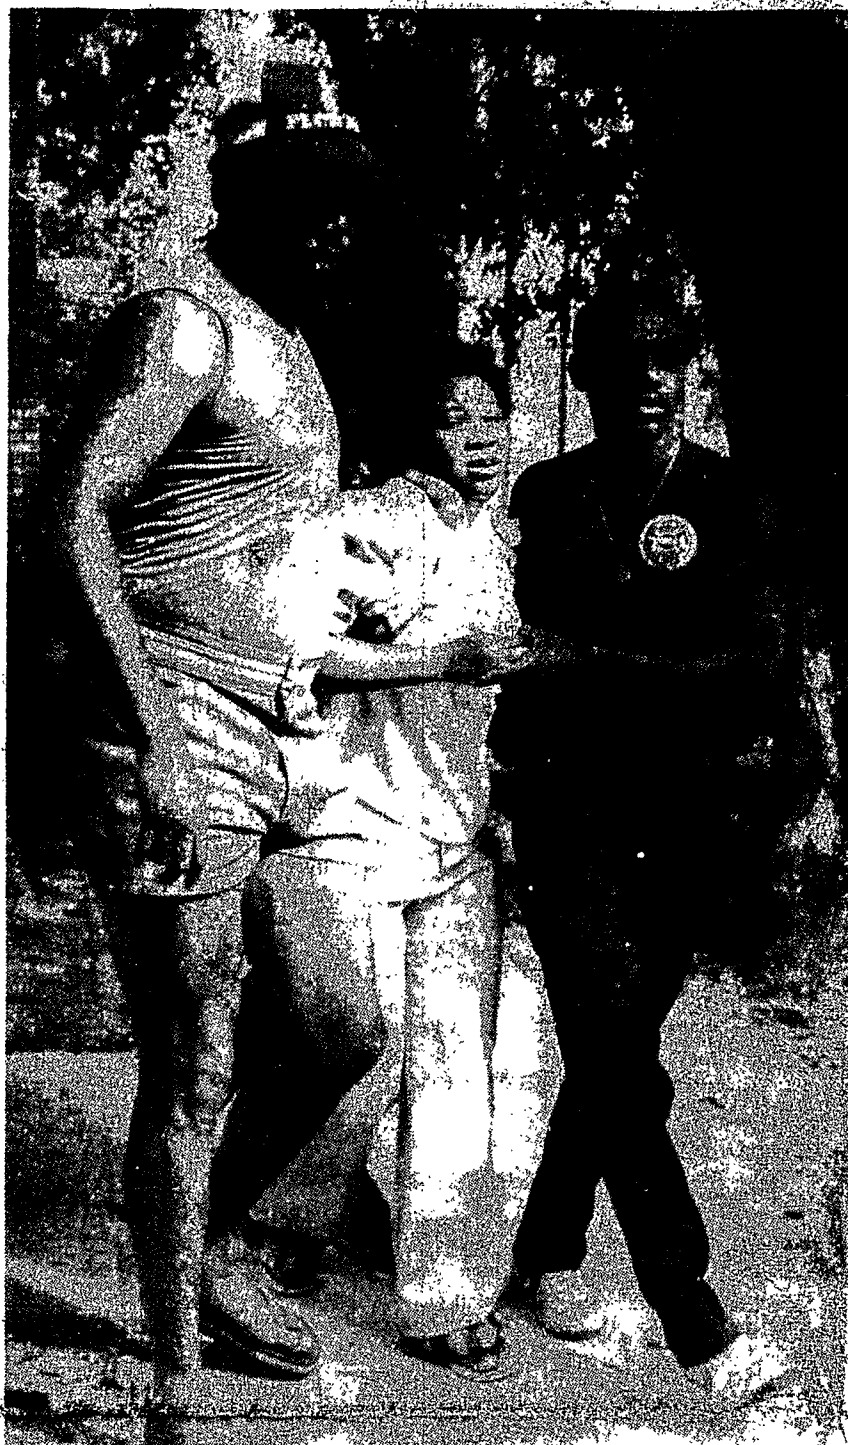

Bennett is charged with fraud and conspiracy in the case and is scheduled for an October trial on the fraud charge.

A January Grand Jury indicted Bennett and Murray for allegedly conspiring to utilize materials and labor from the street project for the mayor's home.

But the conspiracy charges were later dismissed because of a state statute of limitations requires indictment within two years after such crimes occur.

Thomas has ruled that Bennett's fraud charge is an exception to the law.

Murray's case was presented to a recent Hancock Grand Jury which returned the accessory indictment in which he is allegedly a principal in the crime.

In District One supervisor runoff

Courrege to recount poll boxes Wednesday

By WAYNE DUCOMB JR.

A second recount and an examination of ballot boxes in the close Hancock County District One supervisor's Democratic runoff will begin Wednesday afternoon.

Bert Courrege of Lakeshore, District One supervisor, confirmed Saturday that he requested the recount and inspection.

Unofficial returns in the Tuesday Democratic runoff listed Robert B. Peterson Jr. of Clermont Harbor with 835 votes and Courrege with 919—a 16 vote margin.

But Conrad Mauffray of Bay St. Louis and member of the Hancock Democratic Executive Committee which officially conducted the runoff said Saturday that a recount and certification of the ballots Wednesday night in the District One race discovered Peterson had three more votes; and Courrege had one additional vote.

Mauffray explained in one precinct the committee found that Peterson gained two votes and in another box each candidate received one additional vote.

When asked if he felt there might be errors in the committee's certified election vote count, Courrege stated, "I'm not saying there are any discrepancies in the runoff, but with a vote count so close I owe it to my supporters to check the ballot boxes."

The certified count is 920-938.

Peterson said Saturday that he was "served and affidavit" Friday which states Courrege will examine all ballot boxes from the Hancock runoff beginning at 2 p.m. Wednesday at the County circuit clerk's office at the Courthouse in Bay St. Louis.

Regarding the recent Democratic primary and runoff elections, Peterson stated, "I'd just like to say that under the conditions brought about by redistricting I feel all the poll workers and Jerry Heitzmann (the circuit clerk) did a terrific job."

Saturday afternoon

Bay youth drowns in swimming pool

By WAYNE DUCOMB JR.

A Bay St. Louis youth drowned late Saturday afternoon while apparently playing in an apartment complex swimming pool in that city.

The drowning is the fourth to occur in Hancock County this year.

Sgt. Joe Pica of the Bay St. Louis Police Department reported at the Hancock General Hospital emergency room, while personnel there attempted to revive the youth, that he and Patrolman Judy Childs were the first to arrive at Bay Royale Apartments on US-90 in that city.

Pica said he began administering coronary-pulmonary resuscitation on Jay C. Collins, 12, of 522 Bookter St. who was lying motionless next to the apartment complex pool.

David Renfro, 12, and David Berry, 11, both said at the accident scene that they were playing in the pool, had just gotten out when they spotted Collins on the bottom and then pulled the boy out of the water at about 3:30 p.m.

Collins' grief-stricken mother, Ana Marie Nelson, arrived at the scene as Mobile Medic emergency medical technicians were moving the boy to an awaiting ambulance.

Justice Court Judge John Chevis, acting coroner, late Saturday afternoon said cause of Collins' death is a accidental drowning.

Chevis said a coroner's inquest also determined the youth drowned in the Bay Royale pool.

The youth was pronounced dead at 5 p.m., he added.

Hancock unemployment decreases

By WAYNE DUCOMB JR.

Hancock County's jobless rate has dropped one-half of a percentage point from the previous month based on Mississippi Employment Service figures.

The current 15.8 percent figure for July represents 1,590 people out of work from a Hancock civilian labor force of 10,070, an employment service report lists.

June's 16.3 percent jobless rate here reflected 1,630 unemployed out of a 10,010 labor force, the report also lists.

Hancock's current unemployment rate is higher than the present state and national percentages.

Mississippi's unemployment rate dropped to 13.4 percent in July, a decrease of four-tenths of a percentage point compared to June's revised jobless rate of 13.8 percent, reports Cohen Robertson, Mississippi Employment Security Commission executive director in Jackson.

Last year's July unemployment rate was 11.5 percent.

The state rate is higher than the 9.4 percent national rate for July.

Commission figures show 144,000 unemployed and 932,800 employed out of a statewide civilian labor force of 1,076,800.

The initial unemployment insurance claims total 17,038 for July, Robertson says.

Some 72 of the state's 82 counties report unemployment rates of 10 percent or higher in July. Of that number, six counties have unemployment rates in excess of 20 percent, he reveals.

Robertson lists the counties with the highest unemployment rates in July as Montgomery, with 26 percent; George with 24.5 percent; Alcorn and Jefferson with 21.5; Greene with 21.3; and Jackson with 21 percent.

Issaquena, Rankin, Oktibbeha,

Yalobusha, and DeSoto counties have the lowest jobless rates in July, Robertson reports.

Issaquena lists 7 percent, Rankin at 7.6, Oktibbeha at 8.2, Yalobusha with 8.4, and DeSoto with unemployment 8.4; the executive director says.

Some 68 counties show a decrease in unemployment rates from June to July while 14 report increases, he adds.

Extension Service urging best use of farm land

By Ralph Ballew
Extension Service

A large antebellum home dominates the landscape near Edwards, Miss. The structure was built sometime before the Civil War and is headquarters for Westway Farms.

This one, century-old home is the only connection that Westway Farms has with the past and traditional agricultural methods. Instead, Westway represents the finest in modern farm production, marketing and management.

The farm also stands as an outstanding example of what Mississippi farmers are attempting to do to combat severe erosion problems that have evolved since the mid-1970s.

The 7,500-acre farm with 35 full-time employees is fully diversified. That means the farm has a number of different crop and livestock enterprises going at any one time.

Westway Farms enterprises include a Grade A dairy with 350 Holstein cows; 3,500 acres of row crops including cotton, corn, soybeans and wheat; and a herd of 350 commercial beef brood cows.

Good erosion practices are tied into the farm by Manager Bill Gill who believes that good soil fertility is the basis for success in all farm enterprises.

"What we have tried to do is to use land that's more subject to erosion in our pasture program," Gill said. "We row crop land that is not subject to severe erosion, although some of this land is rolling.

"We've done some terracing on this type land and do some farming on the contour. We also use grass waterways to control erosion."

"There is a real need for cattle in this country," Gill said. "We have lots of land that should not be in row crops because of erosion. This type land should be growing good quality grass for the Mississippi cattleman."

In fact, what Bill Gill and Westway Farms is doing is what farm adviser Dr. Jim Collins would like to see all Mississippi farmers do. Collins is leader of the animal science department for the Mississippi Cooperative Extension Service. His organization, along with many other farm-support groups, encourages farmers to put land to best use.

Collins said best use for much of the steep, sandy land of Mississippi is either in pasture or in timber. Of course, Collins, an animal scientist, is interested in converting land to pasture for growing forage crops.

"For the past five years, many of our farmers have put land into row crops that is too steep. When they do this, they're going to have erosion. Farmers will have to get their soil back to the best use," Collins said. "Much of the land we have seen go into row crops since 1975 was also in row crops in the 1930s. Erosion got so bad at that time, the land went back into pasture."

"We may have come full circle again since 1975 when thousands of acres began being converted to soybeans," Collins said for the first time the row crop trend was halted in 1982.

At Westway Farms, Gill has about 650 acres in pastures to support the beef cattle phase

Calvalcade offers music, drama, skits

By JUNE M. HEYDT

The grease paint was applied, the stage lit up and the show went on.

Smiles can be catching and that's what they were at a Thursday dress rehearsal of the Waveland Players' production, Variety 83 Calvalcade of American Entertainment.

When a cast seems to be having fun it seems to rub off on the audience. And it was evident at the dress rehearsal that the cast enjoyed singing, dancing and performing their comic skits.

The show which opened Friday night at 8 p.m. at the Waveland Civic Center on Coleman Avenue, will also run next weekend on Friday and Saturday, Sept. 2 and 3 at 8 p.m.

If the rehearsal was an indication of what to expect on opening night, the audience should be pleased that they paid their $3 to see the show.

The opening skit, 'Charleston Jazz Number,' set the stage for a delightful evening of song and dance.

Dick Fitch and his wife, Barbara Jo, sang and waltzed to 'I Remember It Well.' The Fitches, who have been married over 40 years, seemed to share their feelings of being happily married. A very refreshing touch to the show.

Noonan and Bunk Gardener sang 'Small Talk' and 'I Loved You Once in Silence.' It was delightful to listen to the couple.

Also obvious was the fact that Lori Garside has had formal training in the theatre. Following the show she said she has just received her bachelor's degree in theatre. She also studied opera for a year. Garside and Ed Scanlan Jr., also the producer-director, sang a medley of country and folk songs, including 'Your Cheatin' Heart,' 'Sixteen Tons,' and 'Oh, Lonesome Me.'

Going from the sublime to the ridiculous, the next skit, 'The Villain Still Pursued Her,' kept the audience laughing at the age old melodrama of the dastardly villain, played by Tommy Worrel, pursuing Lori Garside as the sweet innocent thing; the 'wife is me' mother played by Lana Noonan; and last but certainly not least, 'The Hero' saving the day, played by Derek Stechmann. Drats, foiled again.

For anyone who grew up in the 50s and early 60s, the 'Rock and Roll Medley' dance should bring back some old memories. Also in the medley are some calypso songs ending with the famous 'Limbo.'

A skit about the radio broadcast 'War of the Worlds' starring Dottie Overall takes place in a beauty parlour where four women listen to the broadcast on the radio. To see what their reaction to the broadcast was, come see the show. Overall was excellent as, Wilman John, the operator of the parlour.

Mary Diloranzo performs a vibrant tap dance to 'Showboat Minstrel.'

The finale consists of showboat minstrel songs. The audience is invited to join in singing such songs as, 'Music, Music, Music,' 'Camptown Races,' and 'I'm Looking Over a Four Leaf Clover.'

Closing the show, the entire cast and the audience join together to sing 'Dixie.'

Dancers in the show are Chiara Ishem, Monica Parker, Jan Frommeyer, Angelique Bell, Hansel Baxter, Michelle Dietrich, Jamie Dieck, Nicola Dietrich, Buffy Jaquillard, and Piccola Dietrich.

Staff of the show includes: Jeanne-Marie Bell, assistant director; Piccola Dietrich, choreographer; Ingrid Ling, accompanist; Dick Fitch, sound; Pam Baumgartner, lights; Joe Minas, spotlight; Buddy Williams, stage manager; Derek Stechmann and Tommy Worrel, assistant stage managers; Ed Scanlan Jr., stage set.

Lori Garside, Dottie Overall, and Jan Frommeyer, make up; Meta Gardide and Edith Bierhorst Back, publicity; Betty Stechmann and Meta Garside, tickets.

SING ME A SONG—Ed Scanlan Jr., producer and director of Variety 83, Calvalcade of American Entertainment, a Waveland Players production, sings, 'Your Cheatin' Heart' to Lori Garside. The couple sing a medley of country and folk music in the show. The show opened Friday night and will run again next weekend on Friday and Saturday night at 8 p.m. at the Waveland Community Center. A TURN FOR THE BETTER

By CONG. TRENT LOTT
5th District, Mississippi

Around the first week of each month, a relatively obscure agency of government, the Bureau of Labor Statistics, is crowded with members of the news media.

Their interest is in one of the most-watched bits of statistical data published by the agency, the employment situation in America for the prior month.

The news for July was exceptional. Unemployment declined sharply and the number of Americans employed surged upward. The overall unemployment rate was listed at 9.3 percent, nearly one-and-a-half points below last December's highs.

In addition, total employment measured by a monthly survey of households rose by a half-million. Since last December, according to the bureau, increases in payroll employment have totaled 1.7 million.

This positive development on the employment front was coupled with a rise in industrial production. Experts say the industrial production was pushed upward by strong sales and rebuilding of inventories.

According to the Bureau of Labor Statistics, both the number of unemployed persons and the civilian worker unemployment rate dropped substantially in July. I thought it would be interesting to further explore these statistics and find out exactly which segment of the population was faring best.

The July decrease in unemployment occurred largely among adult women, whose jobless rate declined by seven-tenths of a point, according to the bureau. The rate for adult men edged down, too.

The bureau said whites, blacks and Hispanics all shared in the overall decline in unemployment. For example, the unemployment rate for blacks dropped by 1.1 percent.

The jobless rate for workers in manufacturing fell by a full percentage point and has declined by 4.3 points since last December. During the past seven months, jobless rates have fallen for all major industry groups.

One important indication that the economy is improving is that the number of Americans who have been without a job for six months or more actually registered its first real decline in two years.

Since last July, the labor force in America has grown by 1.5 million people, meaning that almost 112 million non-military jobs are being held.

I think the report of the Bureau of Labor Statistics is more than a sampling of dry statistics. It shows that the economy is taking a turn for the better and, while full recovery isn't here yet, the country is at least on the right road.

Matters of Health

KIDNEY STONES

Kidney stones, which can be extremely painful, are fairly common. One out of every 1,000 Americans is hospitalized at some time for kidney stones.

A great many more people have them but pass them with little or no discomfort. However, the stones can cause complications, such as infection and obstruction, and result in severe pain. At this point, surgery is required to remove them.

Until recently removing painful kidney stones has required major surgery — including general anesthesia, a long incision in the side and a recovery period of several weeks.

Now physicians have developed a new procedure that uses only a local anesthetic and cuts hospital recovery time in half. This operation is known as a percutaneous procedure and called "endourology."

In this operation, the surgeon makes a small incision in the patient's side and inserts a tube into the kidney by guiding it with a fluoroscope and x-rays. He then removes the stone in one of three ways, depending on the size and location of the stones:

1. For small stones he uses forceps to grasp them;
2. For stones that are difficult to reach, he uses a flexible instrument to locate and grasp them;
3. For an unusually large stone, he first crushes it with ultrasound or electrohydraulic energy and then removes it through the tube or with forceps.

The entire procedure takes from half an hour to several hours, again depending on the size and location of the stones.

The patient is usually able to leave the hospital within 48 hours. He wears a drainage tube, which is removed in about a week.

Altogether the patient's recovery period is 10 days or less, compared to several weeks for major kidney stone surgery. The patient frequently has less pain, fewer complications and can return to work much sooner.

Can anyone with painful kidney stones have this new type of surgery?

Many doctors believe it will soon replace major kidney stone surgery in a majority of cases. It is especially beneficial to heart patients and others with debilitating conditions for whom major surgery is more of a risk.

In some medical centers, more than 50 percent of kidney stones are removed with the new procedure, which has a success rate of between 75 and 90 percent.

This procedure is still a relatively new one and is not done routinely in Mississippi yet. However, it probably will be available within a year.

Senator Thad Cochran

SPECIAL REPORT:

FORESTRY INDUSTRY

Senator Thad Cochran says significant opportunities exist for America's forest products industry, but a cooperative effort by government and private industry will be necessary to "fully realize our potential for market growth."

Senator Cochran said a Congressional study done at his request outlines the future prospects of the nation's forestry and wood products industry as well as some of the present barriers that must be overcome in world trade.

His remarks came today at ceremonies for the Southern Forest Experiment Station's forestry sciences laboratory at Mississippi State University.

"This study points out very clearly that the United States timber industry is in position to make greater contributions to the national economy in the future," the senator commented.

"The U.S. timber industry is very productive, efficient, and has access to skilled labor and enjoys many competitive advantages."

"However, the study (by the Congressional Office of Technology Assessment) suggests that greater cooperation will be required between industry and government."

"The ultimate success will depend on how well future cooperation is able to focus on critical issues such as barriers to foreign trade, wood utilization research, forestry technologies and forestry information. It is imperative, through, for this study's recommendations to receive timely consideration by both industry and government," he stated.

Senator Cochran emphasized the importance of forestry and related industry to Mississippi's economy, and the key role played in its development by research efforts such as those administered by MSU and others.

The senator's visit here was among a number of appearances he was making in Mississippi during the annual August Congressional recess.

APPALACHIAN COMMISSION

Area development projects and highway construction programs will continue to be provided by the Appalachian Regional Commission under legislation sponsored by Senator Thad Cochran.

Cochran is sponsoring legislation that would extend ARC development programs for four more years, and extend ARC's highway construction program for seven years.

"This program has proven to be tremendously successful in helping to develop the Appalachian Region, one of the poorest sections of our country," Cochran said. "There are a number of projects in Mississippi and other ARC states that I feel we need to continue."

The Appalachian Regional Commission was established by Congress in 1965 in an effort to bring states in the Appalachian Region into the mainstream of American economic life.

"While all Americans are feeling the effects of our current economic slump, the impact on many sections of Appalachia has been severe. I don't think this is the time to abandon development of this region," Cochran said.

Cochran noted ARC has been responsible for many education, health, water and sewer, and job development projects in the 20 Northeast Mississippi counties included in the program.

The legislation sponsored by the senator also would establish the Appalachian Foundation. The job of the foundation would be to increase private funding of non-profit services in the region.

"We have made headway in the effort to bring a diversified economy and a better quality of life to the people of Appalachia. By continuing the ARC, I believe we can help transform this area," Cochran said.

HEALTH CARE

Senator Thad Cochran is sponsoring a package of legislation designed to improve home and community-based health care for the nation's elderly and disabled citizens.

One bill, the Home and Community-Based Services for the Elderly and Disabled Act, is a major health initiative which would allow the states to designate and provide home care services for elderly and disabled persons as an alternative to their being institutionalized.

The second measure, the Community Home Care Services Act of 1983, allows the coordination of existing home and community-based care services funded under the Public Health Services Act, the Older Americans Act, and the Medicaid program.

This bill also amends the Social Security Act to allow the states to be reimbursed under Medicaid for community-based patient services without a waiver from the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services.

An added provision to encourage state participation would increase the federal share of the Medicaid matching formula for these services by 10 percent.

A third bill would designate the week beginning Nov. 27, 1983, as "National Home Health Care Week," to focus nationwide attention on the need to reorient the nation's health care policy so that home and community-based services and care will be more readily available.

Another bill Cochran is co-sponsoring this session would waive the five-month waiting period for terminally-ill persons eligible for benefits under the Social Security disability insurance program.

The waiver would require certification by physicians that the person was terminally ill and not expected to live longer than 12 months.

EDUCATION, JOB OPPORTUNITIES

Senator Thad Cochran says education and job opportunities are "critical to the hopes of Mississippi making economic growth and development in the future."

"We must have good education programs, with dedicated teachers and administrators at the local level, and there must be adequate jobs to meet the needs of our people," he commented.

"Education and opportunity are inextricably linked. We must have both if our state and our people are to enjoy the standard of living to which we all aspire," the Senator stated.

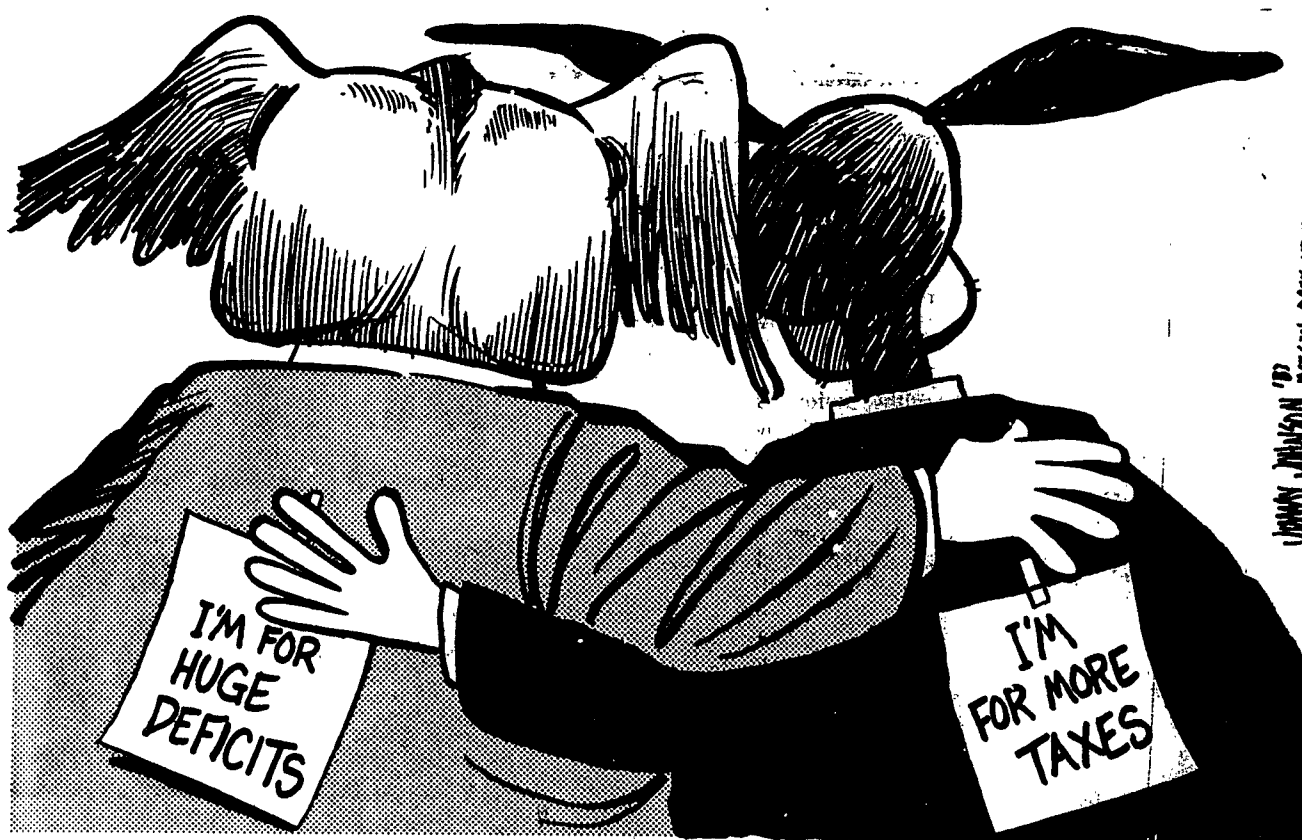

His remarks came at a meeting of faculty of the Brookhaven city school district as the 1983-84 session began for local schools, teachers and students.

"You are the frontline soldiers in our battle for better education, more productive jobs and career opportunities, a more rewarding life for the people of Mississippi," the Senator commented.

"Despite our meager economic base, compared with many other states, the people of Mississippi have demonstrated their willingness to

TO MAKE THE WORLD SAFE FOR INSANITY

PARTNERS IN THE BUDGET PROCESS

News from the Governor sacrifice so that the young people of our state can enjoy good schools and career opportunities," he said.

The Senator, noting that his parents were career-long public school educators in the state, said "I know the sacrifices that you as teachers and administrators also make to help insure that good schools and sound educational programs are possible in our state."

He reiterated his support for programs such as the elementary and secondary education act, vocational and technical training, and the school lunch and nutrition programs. He also pointed out he is sponsoring bills providing incentives for those seeking teaching careers in critical areas such as mathematics and science.

Suggestions that could make the difference between happy vacations and tragedy for drivers on Mississippi highways this summer have been offered by the Governor's Highway Safety Program (GHSP).

"Now is the time for drivers to sharpen their driving skills to avoid serious accidents," according to Glenn A. Fleming, GHSP data analyst.

"The first step to safety is to be sure your car is in safe operating condition," Fleming said. "After a long winter, it would be wise to have various items checked by your car 'doctors' just as we have our annual physicals. This should include the battery, tires, lights, windshield wipers and washers, lubrication, air and gasoline filters, the radiator, the climate control system, fan-alternator belts, brakes, steering and shock absorbers."

He also urged drivers to be aware that school is out and that more children will be walking, running and riding on city streets.

"This will require you to be alert and cautious at all times," Fleming said. "In addition, adult driving behavior sets a model for young drivers to imitate."

Fleming emphasized using seat belts and insisting that passengers also "buckle up" as well as being sure that children are in proper child restraint devices.

"Another key factor is to be sure that you're in good physical condition," he said. "Always adjust car seats and mirrors to accommodate your driving."

Fleming cautioned drivers never to mix drinking and driving. "Remember," he said, "alcohol is a depressant drug, and it affects a driver's ability to react, make good judgment and the individual's vision as well as giving the driver a false sense of security."

He advised drivers to be defensive by managing time and space while driving. "Allow ample time to arrive at destinations, and never follow too closely," Fleming said.

"One of the most sophisticated and deadly pieces of equipment we will operate in a lifetime is an automobile," he noted. "Each year, more than 50,000 Americans die on our nation's streets and highways. Last year, 728 people died in traffic accidents in Mississippi. Please remember to practice good, safe driving habits. The life you save may be your own or someone you love."

Altrusa Club honors deMontluzin

By JUNE M. HEYDT
Altrusa Club of Bay St. Louis and Waveland honored Emily deMontluzin at a Landmark Restaurant dinner meeting Thursday evening.

deMontluzin received a check for a foreign language scholarship fund established in her name at Bay High School where she taught Latin and French for some years before retiring in May.

Earlier this month, deMontluzin won a service award from Waveland

American Legion Post 77 citing her as distinguished citizen of the year. She was nominated for that honor by the Altrusa Club.

Following the dinner, deMontluzin presented slides of her trip to Europe this summer. She showed photographs of historical places she visited with her daughter, Dr. Lorraine deMontluzin.

Slides included the Louvre, the palace at Versailles, the home of Monet, and gardens of many Chateaus throughout France.

Also shown were slides of graveyards in France, one of which inspired the poem 'Flander's Field.'

The Altrusa Club is an international service organization comprised of professional and executive women who are leaders in their fields.

The club supports activities aimed at the improvement and ultimate welfare of the world community and its citizens.

County Agent's Notes

By John Smith

WHEN, HOW TO IRRIGATE

Irrigation in many cases can increase yields significantly. Tests in Mississippi show yield increases from 13.9 bushels to more than 36 bushels, depending on the year and rainfall.

Irrigation does not mean an automatic yield increase. Waiting too late to start, not watering frequently enough and ending too soon will give poor results. They key is to water before the plants wilt from moisture stress.

Telling exactly when to irrigate based on soil moisture is tricky. Waiting until you see plants wilt is a poor way to decide. Some farmers use the "feel test" to decide when plants need water. Instruments are available for the same purpose.

The most likely time soybeans need water is near blooming or any time after blooming. Water use by soybeans is about 3 inch per acre per day from blooming through pod-filling.

Once you start watering, a record of rainfall and irrigation along with general knowledge about water use can help you decide how often to irrigate. Of course, you must consider your acreage and how long it takes to water it each time.

Irrigation should be continued until pod-filling is completed. The cutoff date will vary with the variety and season. Pods are considered filled when the green seeds are touching each other inside the pod.

If irrigation is managed correctly, it can increase yield and also help stabilize yields by reducing year-to-year variation.

A LIFESAVING MESSAGE
Don't take railroad tracks for granted. Perhaps you go back and forth over the same track each day and take train times for granted. Whether the train is expected or unexpected, the results are the same.

Be patient when waiting for a train to pass. Darting across the track just as the caboose passes may put you in the path of another train on a second track. Wait until the lights stop flashing and the trains clear so you can see.

At night, don't overdrive your headlights. You may suddenly approach a railroad crossing and not see a train before it is too late. One of every four crossing accidents involve a vehicle being driven into a train.

Don't drive onto a railroad track unless you are absolutely certain you can drive all the way across. Be sure the traffic ahead of you doesn't stop and box you in on a track.

If your car is boxed in or stalls on the track, get everyone out immediately and away from the car. If a train is approaching, try to flag a warning to it. Try to push the car clear or start it if no train is in sight. But no car is worth a life.

FALL GRAZING

A healthy, uniform stand is necessary on early plantings of ryegrass and other fall grazing crops to justify the extra effort and expense needed to produce the crops.

Fields should be broken immediately where early grazing is needed. Rework the fields before weeds and grasses, particularly bermudagrass, have time to reestablish.

Early planted fields need fallowing and a good seedbed prepared before seeding. Fallowing helps build up soil moisture for quick growth and allows turned-under plant residue to decompose.

Plan to allow at least two weeks for incorporated vegetation to decompose before applying nitrogen and seeding. When a lot of vegetation is turned under, a large part of the nitrogen can be lost when the vegetation decomposes.

Work the soil thoroughly during seedbed preparation. The need to completely uproot bermudagrass and bahiagrass can't be over-emphasized. These grasses will keep growing unless destroyed and will compete with young grazing crops for fertilizer.

Good soil fertility also is needed to produce high yields from winter grazing. On acid soils, liming is the first fertilizer practice needed. Soil testing is the only way to be sure of lime and fertilizer needs. Soil testing is cost-effective for every farm.

MANAGE DAIRY HERDS

Profitable dairy herds are well-managed herds. One way to measure a herd's efficiency is the amount of milk per full-time worker for a year. We talk a lot about pounds of milk per cow, but very little about pounds of milk per person doing the work.

A general goal is at least 600,000 pounds of milk per full-time worker. Fifty cows producing 12,000 pounds of milk each give 600,000 pounds. Only 43 cows producing 14,000 pounds per year will produce 602,000 pounds. One person can handle 40 to 60 cows with a small amount of seasonal labor.

Other areas are important in managing dairy herds, including a well-bred herd, adequate amounts of high quality feed and complete cows records. Also important are adequate milking machine systems that are checked regularly, good milking practices and an environment that allows maximum comfort for the herd.

POINT OF LAW

Mississippi State Bar

(Prepared by the Mississippi State Bar. Some legal rights may vary from locality to locality. Always consult an attorney when in doubt about your rights.)

Q: If an employer refuses to hire or to promote an individual because of his or her race or sex, what recourse does that individual have?

A: Federal law prohibits most employers from discriminating against an individual on the basis of that individual's race, color, sex, religion, or national origin. That means that an employer cannot refuse to hire a person because he is black or refuse to promote him for that reason. Similarly, an employer may not refuse to hire or to promote a woman simply because she is female.

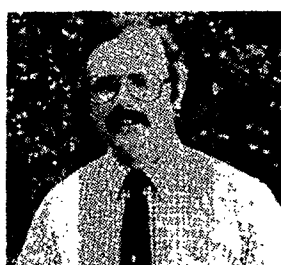

An individual who believes that he or she has been discriminated against in violation of this law may file a complaint with the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission. The complaint must be filed within 180 days of the employer's discriminatory act. The Commission will investigate the complaint. Following the Commission's investigation, the complaining individual may then file a lawsuit against the employer. The lawsuit must be filed within 90 days after the individual receives a letter from the Commission informing him of his right to sue the employer.

Q: Does an individual have any recourse if his employer fires him or demotes him because he has filed a complaint against the employer with the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission?

A: Federal law also makes it illegal for an employer to retaliate against an employee for filing a charge of discrimination or bringing a lawsuit involving claims of discrimination. In addition, the law protects co-workers who testify for another employer who has filed a charge or a lawsuit.

I would like to thank the citizens of District 5 for electing me as your Democratic nominee for Constable.

MEDIA EVENTS

"The Screening Room" covers a lot of territory, or at least it tries to. Books, movies, television — "The Media" have all been reviewed from time to time in this column.

A recent media event, a/k/a "The Billy Cannon Affair" in Baton Rouge, has forced this columnist to address the issues.

I call it a media event because Cannon was regarded as one of the collegiate gridiron's true heroes — galloping out of the fog against Ole Miss on Halloween night on his way to the 1959 Heisman Trophy. The story broke just before Cannon's induction into the College Football Hall of Fame. Thus, it was handled by both the news and sports departments.

First and foremost, Billy Cannon is guilty of attempting to run the biggest counterfeiting scheme that his country has ever known. Immediately after his arrest, he admitted his guilt and turned state's evidence.

Last Friday, Cannon, a Baton Rouge orthodontist, was sentenced to five years in jail along with a $10,000 fine by U.S. District Judge Frank Polozola.

Polozola handed down the sentence despite Cannon's attorneys recommendation that he serve weekends in jail for one year, and provide 30 hours a week of free dental service to an underprivileged neighborhood in Baton Rouge for three years.

Polozola rejected the recommendation by saying, "... (that) would not serve the interest of justice."

Serve the interest of justice? This is a perfect example — and I stress the word "perfect" here — of what is going wrong with our judicial system today.

Here is a man, just a man now, caught and convicted of a victimless crime that he readily admits to masterminding.

Not hiding behind lawyer's tricks, delays or appeals, Cannon offers to repay society for his criminal activities. Instead of a social positive — the dental service during the week while on weekends mulling over what kind of situation he has gotten himself into — the whole thing has been turned into a social negative — the drain on the taxpayer's money while Cannon resides idly in jail.

I suppose Judge Polozola would argue that as a "media personality," Cannon's sentence should serve as a public example. Too bad our judicial process doesn't allow a man to make a mistake and then offer repayment (i.e. "to pay his debt to society") in a far more constructive manner than incarceration.

Jacques Cousteau and the crew of "Calypso" are familiar fixtures on our home televisions. His "Undersea World of Jacques Cousteau" has long been one of the most ambitious and highly regarded series of its kind. This past Saturday, Cousteau, along with his son, Jean-Michel, and the crew of Calypso launched a four-month, $800,000 documentary on the muddy Mississippi River.

The documentary is being funded by the Turner Broadcasting System (Channel 17, CNN) and it will be shown on Ted Turner's network just prior to the opening of the Louisiana World's Fair. The tape will then be donated to the fair for screenings throughout the fair's six-month life.

It was also announced that the Cousteau Society has been signed to design one of the fair's major pavilions.

In a press conference, the younger Cousteau noted that "the Mississippi drains 41 percent of your nation and that's why we want to explore it."

Capt. Cousteau said that they would explore "the Mississippi and all its tributaries."

With the usual painstaking care that marks all of Cousteau's work, this documentary on the Mississippi River ought to be excellent.

Jackson Browne sang in Baton Rouge the other night to an approving and generally admiring crowd. His older, more personal ballads were mixed with the intense new work from his latest album, "Lawyers in Love."

One of his best songs, an ominous tune entitled, "Say It Isn't True," benefitted nicely from a synthesized organ which sounded quite like the dull hum one would expect from a nuclear reactor. Browne dedicated this song to his mother, whom he said had just been arrested outside a California MX missile base.

Browne has always been one of the most intelligent rock lyricists working today and with his new album it sounds as if he hasn't lost this touch.

Barry Levinson's "Diner" will probably be appearing on cable sometime in the near future. If it does, watch it! Levinson's witty, intelligent drama is carried out by some fine, young credible actors including Mickey Rourke, who you may remember as the wormy firebomber in "Body Heat" and Steve Guttenberg, "Diner" is a nice piece of good ensemble acting.

Finally, James Taylor will play at Audubon Park's new Hibernia Pavilion on Labor Day. Tickets for the outdoor affair will include admission, a box lunch and a bottle of champagne...out under the oak trees.

George Custer was the youngest American man ever to make rank of General in the American army — he achieved that by age 23.

Rhodes, Scharp wed at Jourdan River Shores

Sandra J. Scharp became the bride of Billy W. Rhodes Jr. August 6 in a 7 p.m. candlelight ceremony at Jourdan River Shores Clubhouse with Judge Bruce Necaise officiating.

The bride is the daughter of Vernon L. Ladner of Waveland and Virdee E. Orrells of Kiln. The groom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Willys W. Rhodes of Bay St. Louis.

A brass bridal arch and candelabra with arrangements of cushion poms, carnations and dogwood in shades of mauve, pink and burgundy, formed the background for the ceremony. Ferns and greenery decorated the reception area.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a formal gown of mauve qiana featuring a Victorian-style jacket of venise lace fashioned with long tapered sleeves. She wore a half wreath of baby's breath, miniature carnations and dogwood and carried a cascade of ivory bridal roses, miniature carnations, dogwood and baby's breath interspersed with tiny seed pearls and fern.

Glenda Necaise Morgan of Pass Christian attended the bride as matron of honor. She wore a formal gown of burgundy qiana with Victorian neckline and deep ruffled chantilly lace on the bodice. Her headpiece was of dogwood and baby's breath and she carried a cascade of miniature carnations, roses and dogwood in shades of mauve and burgundy with ribbon streamers.

Willys W. Rhodes served his son as best man.

The bride's mother was attired in a formal gown of blue taffeta with lace overlay. The mother of the groom chose a grey semi-formal dress. Both wore corsages of ivory roses with mauve ribbons.

A reception followed the ceremony and guests were received by children of the bride, Christi Scharp, Jeanne Scharp, Michael Scharp, Steven Scharp and Shannon Scharp; and children of the groom, Mrs. L. J. (Tracy) Saucier, Dennis Rhodes, Danny Rhodes, Terrie Rhodes and Douglas Rhodes.

The guest register was kept by Jo Ellen Strong and cake was served by Karlyn Pecoul, both cousins of the bride.

On return from a wedding trip to Louisiana, the couple will reside in Bay St. Louis.

Nuptial Mass unites Johns, Philibert

Angele Therese Philibert of Metairie, La. and Stephen Paul Johns of Bay St. Louis were married July 16 in a 2 p.m. Nuptial Mass at St. Angela Merici Church in Metairie, La. with Rev. Francis Berner officiating.

The bride is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Harry Hawes Philibert of Metairie, La. The groom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Watson A. Johns of Bay

St. Louis.

Arrangements of white gladioli and fugi mums decorated the sanctuary and lilac bows with ceramic bells and white doves marked the center aisle pews.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore her mother's wedding gown, which was fashioned of ivory slipper satin. The rosepoint chantilly lace bodice was adorned with seed pearls and the skirt extended to a cathedral train. Her lace bridal hat was studded with seed pearls and ivory silk roses held a veil of illusion. She carried a bouquet of white silk roses, stephanotis and baby's breath.

Michelle Gallagher of Shreveport, La. attended her sister as matron of honor.

Bridesmaids were Patricia Givens of New Orleans; Monique Fontenot of Lake Charles, La. and Ann McNair of Starkville, sister of the groom.

The attendants were identically attired in lilac gowns of marquisette taffeta. Double ruffles formed the shoulder and neckline. They wore ivory straw hats with lilac ribbon and silk orchid trim and carried lace fans decorated with orchids.

Diamondhead Gardeners slate fall meetings

The Diamondhead Garden Club held an executive board meeting recently to finalize the plans for the year.

Mrs. R.B. Boatright, president, asked the finance chairman, Mrs. Dix Ashman, to present the budget, which was unanimously accepted.

Important dates to remember were the Spanish Trail District meeting, Sept.

21 at Richton, Ms., and the Gulf Coast Council of Garden Clubs which will meet Oct. 7 at Diamondhead, with the Diamondhead Garden Club as host.

A Bonsai workshop will be given by Mrs. Joseph Finley on Oct. 26 at 9 a.m. at her home. The Finley's will also host the club's annual picnic, honoring members' husbands, on Oct. 27.

Other workshops scheduled tentatively are one on Christmas decorations and one on Flower Show design and Flower Show procedure.

The commercial beautification award was given by the chairman, Mrs. George Kollasch, to the Fairway Villa again this month; Garden of the Month plaque was given to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Merlin Markel, Diamondhead.

Drive East. Because of the conflict of dates with the Spanish Trail District meeting, the Diamondhead Garden Club's first meeting of the year will be the fourth Wednesday, Sept. 27 at 10 a.m. in the Aloha Room of the Country Club.

Submitted by Mrs. Clarence A. Evans, publicity chairman.

Catholic Church Parish News

By Fr. B.C. Keller
Faith in God gives us a whole new perspective unavailable through ordinary knowledge. It literally "puts us in our place." We worship and reach out to others as a result of humility's vision.

Kindly remember in your prayers Morton Collins who died in California last Monday.

St. Rose parish council thanks the parishioners who attended the Pot Luck Dinner last Saturday honoring our senior citizens. We only wish there had been more in attendance. Special thanks to Margaret Hicks, Gerry Lang, Gloria Lee, Donna Williams and Marilyn Williams who arranged for the affair.

Also thanks to Lonnie Bradley for his fine performance as master of ceremonies and to Dorothy Bradley for her banner work. Thanks to Larry Cain and his crew who hauled the tables. Next meeting will be on Wednesday, Sept. 7.

Sister Lauren wishes to thank all who were involved in planning, executing, and/or witnessing the beautiful liturgy on the occasion of her silver anniversary of religious vows. It was a great community witness. She also enjoyed the leisurely get together in the cafeteria.

We would like to thank Ellsworth Collins for replacing the small speakers in the rear of the church with larger ones. Wiring on the system will be replaced to make it more effective.

The second collection today will be for the Extension Society which gives considerable help to our Diocese for the building of mission churches.

Registration for religion classes for those attending public school, grades 1 through 8, will be today after all the Masses outside of church. Parents and grandparents are asked to help their children register. Classes will begin after Sept. 18.

High school students will register on Sept. 10 and 11. Those in the 10th grade or 15 or over should indicate their readiness for confirmation preparation.

Pre-Confirmation classes are not a requisite for present readiness. All other high school students will meet every third or fourth week, beginning in October.

Tomorrow at 7 p.m. there will be a reorganizational meeting of St. Rose Catholic youth organization in our school.

Tuesday at 6:30 p.m. our Gospel Choir will practice.

Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. our Inquiry Class will be held in hall behind school.

The parish family of Nativity Cathedral in Biloxi cordially invites all Catholics of the Diocese to participate in a nine day novena of Marian Vespers, Aug. 31 to Sept. 7, at 7 p.m. each evening. The novena will close with a celebrated Mass on Sept. 8 at 7 p.m.

Parishioners are invited to attend a liturgy workshop at the Seminary next weekend, Sept. 2-4.

The program, "Roots of Worship" is for all interested persons: liturgy committee members, lectors, choir, ushers, religion teachers and priests.

Father Clifton Labbe, SVD and Miss Vinetta Boyd will explore the origins of Black Catholic tradition and how these traditions are incorporated into the Sunday liturgy.

It starts at 7:30 p.m. on Friday and ends after lunch on Sunday. Cost is $40 for those staying overnight; $15, for others. Call Seminary for reservations, 467-9837.

St. Rose Altar Society will have its annual Mass for its living and deceased members on Sunday, Sept. 11 at 9 a.m. Mrs. Joan Thomas will be the guest speaker. Members of Our Lady of Mercy Church in Pass Christian will be in attendance as guests. Please mark your calendars.

MASS SCHEDULE
Sunday, 7 and 9 a.m. and 6 p.m.
Daily, Monday through Saturday, 6:30 a.m.
Saturday (Virgil) 6 p.m.
Mother of Perpetual Help Novena at beginning of Tuesday Mass.

Confessions are heard half-hour before weekend Masses and upon request.

THE ABUNDANT LIFE

By Shaun Murphy

MINISTER, BAY ST. LOUIS CHURCH OF CHRIST

Refreshing, revitalizing, uplifting, inspirational, encouraging, energizing, exciting, joyful, exhilarating — these are few of the words that best describe the feeling I get when I read the Gospels in the New Testament!

Sometimes I can get so deeply into what I read in the Gospels that it's almost like I'm there. In an off-white robe, dusty sandals, hot and sweaty I'm walking the cart-paths of Jerusalem.

This time happens to be a feast time for the Jews. There is excitement in the air! I'm standing near a pool of water which is surrounded by five beautiful covered colonades. I'm amazed at the vast amount of disabled humanity around me! There is a blind man, a lame man, people with paralysis.

Suddenly a man walks up and begins talking to one of the disabled on the ground. I overhear the invalid man to say that he has had this condition for 30 years! And of all questions to ask, this inquiring gentleman asks the crippled beggar, "Do you want to get well?"

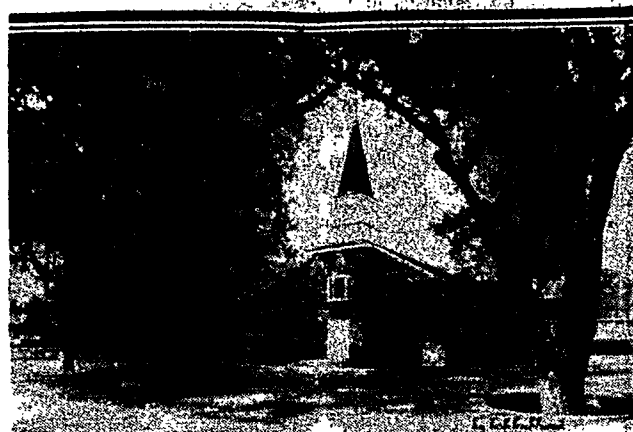

The poor man on the floor begins to tell the inquirer about his inability to get into the pool when the water is stirred. (Apparently this man must think that this pool has some healing qualities. I think to myself!) "While I am trying to get in, someone else goes down ahead of me," he says. My heart goes out to this man.

Then of all things, this gentle man, gives the beggar an impossible command. "Get up! Pick up your mat and walk!" I think to myself, how heartless and cruel!

But then the impossible happens! The crippled beggar with the frail body pushes himself up from the ground, a little shaky at first, but then he stands up, and slowly begins to move his legs. He is confused, unsure of himself, but he is walking! He smiles, he whimpers, he laughs and then he cries for joy! He looks around and the man who healed him is gone!

But then I realize that I've simply been reading the fifth chapter of John. And I also realize that I put myself in the wrong role as I daydreamed. You see, I'm the spiritually crippled beggar, not some innocent bystander!

FALL HAIRSTYLE PREVIEW

ETV Brief

RUSSIAN WRITER
"Inside Story Special Edition" presents a documentary on the late Russian balladeer/actor/poet/Satirist Vladimir Vysotsky at 9 p.m., Wednesday, Sept. 7, on the Mississippi ETV Network. "A Voice from Russia: The World of Vysotsky" shows the strong hold Vysotsky still exerts on ordinary Russians to the extent that thousands risk official recrimination by placing flowers on his grave at the anniversary of his death each year.

It includes excerpts of a documentary about Vysotsky produced recently in Russia by Danish Television.

In addition, journalist-commentator Hodding Carter will discuss Vysotsky with prominent Russian emigre artists who are living in the United States.

Vysotsky's songs mocked the Soviet establishment, even the secret police. He is as popular among ordinary Russian people as any rock singer in the West, and his death three years ago at the age of 42 sparked the first spontaneous demonstration Moscow had seen for many years, as 100,000 people from all over the Soviet Union flocked to his grave to pay tribute under the wary eyes of the Soviet police.

The program will be rebroadcast at 4 p.m., Saturday, Sept. 10.

Hancock resident showing wood ware at Bay library

By JOE PILET
Coordinator
Hancock County
Friends of the Library

It all started about 30 years ago when Wayne P. Ducomb Sr. of Huckleberry Hill on Jourdan River admired some early American wood ware and decided he would try his hand at crafting a few pieces as gifts for his wife—later on for his children and special occasion gifts for friends.

Until recently Ducomb's hobby has been a rather well guarded secret.

Ducomb is well known as president of the Mississippi Monitor Publications Inc. of Bay St. Louis and a member of the Hancock County Planning Commission.

Some of his many beautifully designed articles have, by invitation of Friends of the Library, been placed in the display case at the entrance of City-County Library in Bay St. Louis.

They are scheduled to remain on exhibit until mid-

October.

Ducomb is extra selective when he visits the local lumber yards. He knows good wood when he sees and feels its grain and settles for nothing short of the best for his purposes. Yes, he has a home woodworking shop and it is well equipped with fine tools of the trade.

It would be somewhere between difficult and impossible to list all the items Ducomb has designed and made.

His largest piece is a 'hunt board,' trestle type table—22 inches wide and six feet long.

Great for use at large buffet suppers!

Other rather large pieces include quilt racks—one for each of his three children.

Then there's an array of smaller pieces which include plant stands, a cranberry scoop, wall scones, a wall candle box, towel and napkin holders, trays, spice chests, curio shelves, brass trimmed clock cases, and much more.

Brass trimmings highlight some of his choice pieces such as tinker's boxes and clock cases.

DRUG PROJECT

Volunteers from every community in Mississippi are needed to implement a major national project designed to combat drug abuse among youth on the local community level.

Spearheaded by First Lady Nancy Reagan, "The Chemical People" is a unique outreach endeavor that combines the impact of two television specials about drug and alcohol abuse with the power of community action.

The programs, which will be hosted by Mrs. Reagan, will air on Mississippi ETV at 7 p.m., Nov. 2 and Nov. 9.

In conjunction with the ETV telecasts, the project calls for concerned citizens to gather together in town meetings to watch the programs and to discuss their community's problems with drugs and alcohol and to devise possible solutions. The project then calls for each community to form a task force to work on solving its problems locally.

In order for these town meetings to take place, volunteers are needed. Interested persons are urged to contact "The Chemical People Project," Mississippi ETV, P.O. Drawer 1101, Jackson, MS 39205. The volunteers will be matched with other volunteers in their areas.

The Drug Research and Education Association in Mississippi, Inc. (DREAM), is coordinating the state's efforts in cooperation with Mississippi ETV.

THE MORMONS

Waveland Ward
Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-Day Saints

By PATTY BALDREE
Church Information Dir.
Some 22 young women from Hancock County recently completed a four-day campout sponsored by the Young Women's Organization of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints Gulfport Stake.

The camp is an annual event planned for the young women of the church, ages, 12-18, along with their leaders and their non-member friends.

The purpose of the event is to teach survival techniques in a fun and relaxing atmosphere.

This year the girls slept in tents and enjoyed activities such as swimming, canoeing, hiking, crafts, aerobics, story telling, skirts, hair braiding, and an autograph party.

In addition, they received instruction in the following:

—finding North by the sun and the stars;

—how to use and read a compass and a map;

—how to identify the wild plants of this area, including which ones are useful and which are harmful;

—the use of various types of knots and lashing;

—how to safely use and care for camp tools such as; an ax, a saw, a knife, and a hatchet;

—how to maintain a proper woodpile;

—water safety and rescue; and —fishing, which included kinds of bait, how to bait a hook, and how to clean your catch.

The program of training consists of instructions on 4 levels. Each girl has the opportunity of completing one or two levels per year.

Upon completion of any one level, a girl can assist in the training of others in that level. When a girl completes all 4 levels, she is then qualified as a camp counselor and will have the expertise necessary to help her and those around her better cope should an emergency situation arise.

This year's campout was held at Paul B. Johnson State Park near Hattiesburg.

Attending from Hancock County were Lisa Day, Lora Day, Collette Bourganin, Melissa Ladner, Tammy

Robin Sones, Catherine Forrest, Jill Forrest, Brenda Dalon, Chere Dalon, Maxine Gorman, Gay Lynn Cuevas, Gloria Genna, Mandy Wilson, Bridget Baum, Darlene McKinley, Sharon Berry, Debby Cuevas, Judith Fuller, Melissa Ladner, Tammy

LaFontaine, Bridgette Baum, Tammy Wilson, and Jeannie Bell who served as a youth camp specialist.

Camp leaders and chaperones from this area were Cathy Ginn, Elaine Forrest, and Karen Zahnizer.

ETV Brief

"Consumer Connection," one of 13 new instructional series for the 1983-84 school year, will be leased by Mississippi ETV with funds provided by Mississippi Power Company.

"Consumer Connection" is a series of seven, 20-minute instructional television programs designed to explain concepts, stimulate classroom discussion and motivate further research into information skills necessary for high school students to become effective consumers.

"Faced with budget cutbacks, our small staff was searching for cost-effective ways to reach the youngsters who'll soon be customers for our product and to help them become well-informed consumers," said Mary Pyle, Energy Communications specialist. "ETV is highly regarded by the teachers in our service area. By cooperating with them, we're able to reach many more students at a fraction of the cost of traditional education projects."
